

System of Rice Intensification: The Peace Corps Experience

Friday, April 28th
2:30-4:00pm
102 Mann Library
Pizza and drinks will be provided

Curious about joining the Peace Corps? Wondering how Peace Corps Volunteers engage with communities? Interested in development through the lens of agricultural extension?

Come learn from recent Peace Corps Volunteers about their experiences with the System of Rice Intensification (SRI), a grassroots, climate-smart and agroecological rice growing approach that fits well with the realities and conditions Peace Corps Volunteers work in. Six recent volunteers from Senegal, Guinea, Madagascar, Benin and Niger will discuss their work in training, extension and research involving SRI, and opportunities for Cornell students looking to join the Peace Corps and engage in rural development.

*This event is jointly organized by Peace Corps at Cornell, SRI-Rice.
Contact: Andy Pochedly (peacecorps@cornell.edu) and Hillary Mara (ham72@cornell.edu)*